

Sixth Sense

Which Week?

This Week: 17th Jan (Week 1)

Next week: 24th Jan (Week 2)

Were you to be impacted by COVID...

There are arrangements in place to support you to work remotely whilst absent, if well enough to work during isolation. You will be aware that we no longer need to send bubbles of students home to isolate, but do need to adhere to Government policy for students who have tested positive for Covid to isolate.

Just to make you all aware, we are still required to mark your attendance based upon your involvement in the lesson and engagement with the work set. Your teacher will be made aware of your absence via a daily email sent to all staff.

The expectations for remote learning are as follows:

- Students self-isolating will follow their normal timetable.
- PowerPoint and resources will be put into your class' TEAMS folder if you are self isolating.
- Your teacher will make contact with you/be ready to accept you into the lesson via Teams in order to be able to mark the register accurately and check understanding of work.
- Based upon the context of the class remote live lesson teaching by your teacher is optional. If a live lesson is being conducted, the screen will be shared to show the lesson PowerPoint and resources. Cameras are to be turned off.

We hope that this won't apply to you, but want to provide reassurance that you will still be supported were you required to isolate.

Studying in the USA: Webinar

Please find a link below to a webinar taking place Wednesday, 19 January from 5:00-6:30pm for any students considering studying in the USA. It is run by the US-UK Fulbright Commission and interest can be expressed on attending this by going to <https://fulbright.org.uk/events/study-in-the-us-webinar-january-2022>.

Independent Study Suggestions

The internet provides a phenomenal array of opportunities to study independently and develop knowledge. Two that have come to light recently, are applicable to the vast majority of your subjects studied and are free to access their seminars are:
